

ABOUT THIS — AND —
ABOUT THAT

By OLIVER GEDEIST

USELESS.—This week's is a useless column. If the reason for its uselessness was not existent, the subject would be unnecessary. If serious thinking could replace the existing indifference to human welfare, if extreme pleasure-seeking were modified in favor of constructive, unselfish unbiased mental effort, the object of the subject would previously have been accomplished.

A SURVEY.—A newsman's trade paper recently made a survey among weekly newspapers to determine viewpoints on religious interest, morals, and peace and war. One comment, from a pastor-newspaper editor, was this: "I don't see how a religious revival in the U. S., no matter how strong, can avert a war with non-Christian nations if they are determined to make war." And that's sense. He might have added that since "Christian" nations have waged war against similar nations, what we snugly call "heathen" nations cannot be expected to improve over our "religion" (save us!).

UNTHINKER.—Another, and I call him an "unthinker" because he is worse than a NONthinker, since his view is destructive of good thinking, says that "we have tried every means except the principles of Jesus Christ in an effort to prevent war. It's about time we tried those." To which, with the man in the paragraph above, I say, "Phooey to you!"

ONE TROUBLE.—One of our difficulties as Christians, if we are, is that among ourselves we practice a philosophy which brought several tart retorts when, among so-called heathen people in the Orient and in Africa, I asked natives why they were not Christians. One of the first incidents was in China, with the father of a young man whom I met in college in the United States. I was young, and an active churchman. His reply set me back on my heels. He said: "When Christians observe their own rules, quit drunkenness, quit taking our little girls for sex satisfaction, quit spreading uncleanness, practice what they preach, all have one Jesus, all have one God, and quit claiming for each branch of Christianity superiority over the other, maybe then 'heathen' Chinese be Christians." My friend was a business man and a graduate of two European universities. When I saw him a few years ago, just before he died, he had found no reason to change his opinion. And I agreed.

ILLUSTRATIVE.—The illustration I shall use is employed because it better develops the point I make. Being a southerner, I am naturally supposed to be a "nigger hater"—that is, by prejudiced ignoramus. Well-informed persons of both colors know better. But, the point: I met a southern business man in West Africa many years ago, on one of my earliest trips there. We lived among black people; few whites anywhere near. The southern white business man was not choosy, and the little African girls were not safe. Bad enough for a "damnyankee" to do that, but for a southerner—the double hypocrite! The end of the point is this: an African chief, controlled by authority, wanted to kill, dared not, and in my young enthusiasm for "church" I asked him to be a Christian, to have faith and patience. He said some nasty things; I did not blame him.

WAR?—Of course there will be war. In the beginning, up there at the top, I told you this would be useless, and you know that pointing out that war is inevitable because war is in the heart of the human race will hardly get a "rise" off of you because you are not interested. But this is the gist of the thing: we urge the superiority of our religion over all others, an offense to friendly nations, and boast of our Christian way, and then permit the little petting jealousy of domestic political and racial ties to make us war among ourselves, setting a bad example for our children and for the world. If what we've got is "religion", that's not what we need more of. We need kindness, patience, generosity, and a sacrificial spirit.

IT MIGHT.—Another newspaper man believes that an exaggeration of deep religious (meaning denominational) convictions would be dangerous. Homer Steen of The Hesperian, Floydada, Texas, writes: "Deep religious convictions might even cause war to come sooner." He knows his history. He knows, as you know, that some of the worst butchering in the history of the human race was the result of jealousies between "Christian" groups. This is worth keeping in mind longer than it takes to flick your eyelash. If it were kept in mind and something done about it, maybe we would have a better world.

HAS VALUE.—A Chinese friend, a Buddhist, two years ago told me that Christianity had done more for his country than any other influence. And he added, "It is a pity that Christians do not observe the Christian philosophy. The few who do observe it have done so much for my China."

IT'S COMING.—War is coming. But we are too much concerned, like the Pharisees, with the damfoolishness of

GAME SEPT. 7

There will be a B league game played at Tinley Park on Sept. 7, 1947. Tinley Park vs. Posen. This is a regular second-half game originally scheduled for July 27.

Orland Independent "B"

Sunday, August 31, the Orland "B" Independents took the DuPage Mustangs into camp to the tune of 6 to 2. Ludwig for Orland pitched one of his best games of the year, holding the hard-hitting Mustangs to one lonely hit, coming in the third inning, when they scored their two runs, sandwiched in with two errors and a hit batsman. In the last six innings only 18 men faced Ludwig. He was given faultless support in this stretch and also struck out 11 men.

Prescott for the DuPage boys pitched a steady game, but was nicked in the pinch for seven safties. Tuttle and Kramer each getting two hits. A return game will be played Sept. 28.

On Labor Day, the McCook Indians celebrated the occasion by defeating the Orland "Bs" 8 to 0 in Orland. It is the first time that the Orland boys have been held scoreless this season. It was caused by the three-hit pitching of B. Saban, who pitched a heady game and refused to weaken with men on bases.

The 11 hits by the Indians came at opportune moments and, mixed with errors and daring base running, accounted for the eight tallies. Lach and Tuttle were the batteries for Orland.

Marvin Henke of Tinley Park was grand champion winner at South Cook 4-H fair held in Tinley Park last week.

Breaking all records for 4-H fairs in South Cook, the two-day show by the girls and boys of 4-H attracted the largest crowds, officials said, that have attended 4-H meets in this section.

Recording-breaking exhibits of farm machinery was equalled by exhibits of domestic equipment of all sorts, and the two days were filled with interested spectators, reaching up to a late hour each night.

Approximately 50 head of cattle were counted in the cattle shed, under a tent, this interest in the exhibition being quickened by major prizes offered by the 4-H fair committee.

Marvin Henke's grand championship brought him the major prize of $50, the entry being a pure-bred Holstein cow.

Other grand prize winners were Walter Bernard $25, Delmar Mather, $15, and Bernard Mulderink, $10.

The fair committee has stated that a decision was made at a meeting immediately after the fair to keep all exhibits open through the second evening of the show at the 1948 fair. Under 4-H rules this year, time for closing exhibits was set by the farm bureau, but next year all exhibits, including cattle and farm machinery, will remain in position and will not be taken down until after the evening's show is completed.

The committee in charge of the 4-H fair is expected to continue as the 1948 committee, and preparations will be made well in advance of the 1948 show to prepare for a larger and more exciting show than this year's record-breaker. Grand prizes were new in 4-H shows this year, but setting up of the capital prizes brought greater interest in the show than the boys and girls have previously shown. As a result, it is expected that the 1948 fair will lure even more than this year's stock exhibits, since it is likely that next year capital prizes will go well beyond this year's offerings.

CHURCH TO SHOW MOTION PICTURE OF COMPLEXITY OF THE UNIVERSE

Calvary Baptist church, Lincoln Estates, of which the Rev. Olaf J. Nelson is pastor, will have a showing of the motion picture, "The God of Creation" next Wednesday evening, September 10, according to an announcement this week by Mr. Nelson.

"Vivid full-color scenes from astronomy and natural science are featured in 'The God of Creation,'" Mr. Nelson stated.

In the opening section of "The God of Creation" the audience takes a trip to the stars by means of solar photographs taken through the giant 100-inch telescope of Mount Wilson Observatory in southern California, and views complex gyrations of our own solar system.

Lapse-time photography is utilized to demonstrate the beauties of natural science. The illusion of flower buds developing into full-blown blossoms in a few seconds is created through this time-compressing photo technique.

The metamorphosis of a caterpillar through the various stages from worm to butterfly and pollination of flowers are seen on the screen in full color.

Believed to be the first of their kind are the natural-color pictures of photosynthesis, the mysterious food-manufacturing process resulting from the action of sunlight on leaves.

Through photomicrography the audience peers into the microscopic world of a drop of water and observes the complexity of tiny organisms, enlarged more than a million times.

"The God of Creation" will be presented by the Rev. Ralph A. Leeds, Moody Bible institute film representative.

Child Fires Rifle, Youth in Hospital

Robert Christman, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Christman, Route 1, Mokena, has been in Silver Cross hospital since early last week, as a result of a shot fired by his seven-year-old nephew, Robert Meek of Chicago, a visitor in the Christman home.

According to a sheriff's office report, the child pointed a short .22 rifle at young Christman, not knowing it was loaded, pulled the trigger, and seriously wounded the youth.

The bullet was not removed, it was said, but the wounded young man is reported as getting along well.

Dedication Sunday

At the Sunday morning service in Calvary Baptist church, Lincoln Estates, a new electrically illuminated outside bulletin board will be dedicated in memory of Mrs. James Hunter.

At the time of her passing about two years ago friends in the community gave to a fund with which to purchase flowers in her memory. There was some money left over and was given to James Hunter, who donated the sum as part payment on the bulletin board.

A son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Bettenhausen, he was born in Green Garden township where he spent his youth. Later he moved to Andres and established a general store there. He operated the general store for 23 years until ill health forced him to retire about three years ago at which time he moved to Joliet to make his home.

Active in affairs of the Green Garden church, he served as head of the church school there for a quarter of a century. He also held other offices in the church. Mr. Bettenhausen was active in the Masonic lodge also.

Surviving are his wife, the former Marie Helsen; two daughters, Lois of Joliet and Mrs. Windell Morrison of Andrew; one granddaughter; two sisters, Mrs. Emma Woodsman of Joliet and Mrs. Alma Bauch of Frankfort; two brothers, Henry of Albion, Mich.; and Alvin of Chicago.

The following letter was received by Mrs. Moss from William N. Erickson, president board of commissioners of Cook county:

"It has been brought to my attention that on July 11 you and the members of your club visited our Oak Forest institution and served ice cream, cake, and coffee to a number of patients."

"I can well understand the joy and pleasure that these aged folks derived from your kindness; it made them very happy and it was most generous of you and the other members. I want to take this opportunity of expressing my personal appreciation for the thoughtfulness which prompted so fine an affair."

Gas Tax Receipts

Rise in First Half

Will county and the municipality of Joliet received $146,644 in allotments from Illinois state gasoline taxes in the first six months of 1947, compared with $141,504 in the same period of 1946, according to a statistical analysis prepared by Barcus, Kindred & Company, of Chicago, specialists in Illinois municipal bonds. This was an increase of $5,140.

The increase was due to the rising gasoline consumption which boosted motor fuel tax receipts, the financial firm declared. If the present rate of gain is maintained, total 1947 distributions to Illinois counties and municipalities may exceed the all-time high recorded in 1946.

Will county's share of allotments distributed locally by the state was $107,930 in the first six months of 1947, a gain of $2,290. Joliet received $38,714, a gain of $2,850.

Leaves Railroad

After 50 Years

Charles Pfeiffer on August 31 gave up railroading. A resident of Frankfort nearly all his life, he has been employed by the E. J. and E. railroad since the latter years of the last century.

One of the phases of railroading impressed upon Mr. Pfeiffer's mind is the change in rails. When he began his railroad career rails weighed 63 pounds to the yard. He has seen traffic grow heavier and heavier, until rails weigh 113 pounds to the yard.

Mr. Pfeiffer has been roadmaster for the company through the past eight years, with headquarters in Joliet. What will he do now that he has retired? Being a railroad man, he intends to travel.

A testimonial dinner will be given for Mr. Pfeiffer at Wooford hotel, Joliet, this Thursday evening. A brother and sister, Ernest Pfeiffer and Mrs. Fred Woodcock, live in New Lenox, another sister, Mrs. Lulu Stauffenberg, lives in Manhattan, and two other brothers are Frank Pfeiffer of Chicago Heights and Peter Pfeiffer of Chicago.

Mr. Pfeiffer, who entered railroad work as a boy, is 63.

UNDER FLOODLIGHTS . . . For 74 years, Seven Falls and South Cheyenne Canyon have been among the major scenic attractions in the Pikes Peak region of Colorado. Visitors now can view the famous falls at night, under electric lights. The waterfall, shown above, is lighted by 28 large floodlights with alternating white and color effects.

IN THESE UNITED STATES

Floodlights Now Cast Beam On Scenic Falls and Canyon

WNU Features.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.—Embracing "the grandest mile of scenery in Colorado," majestic Seven Falls and picturesque South Cheyenne Canyon have intrigued visitors to the Pikes Peak region for the past 74 years. Their beauties, however, have been shrouded when nightfall descended but now, through completion of an electrical engineering feat, this major scenic attraction of the Rockies can be viewed under electric lights.

The project, which makes this Colorado beauty spot the only completely lighted canyon and waterfall in the world, required the use of 80 huge floodlights and more than 1,000 small spotlights. More than two miles of heavy copper rubber insulated cable was installed underground.

The waterfall, which has seven separate falls in its 266 foot descent, is lighted by 28 large floodlights with alternating white and color effects. The crystal clear trout pool at the foot of the falls is lighted by eight underwater lights, revealing the rainbow trout gliding about in its depths.

The magnificent weather beaten pink granite walls of the canyon, which rise to a height of more than 2,000 feet, present countless shadow effects as the lights play upon them. Various rock formations, such as the "Setting Turkey," Devil's Slide and "Wrestling Bears," are spotlighted by 500 to 1,500 watt lights.

Majestic pine trees on the banks of the splashing mountain stream are bathed in various colored flood lights, while others are sprinkled with colored lights. Standing as a sentinel at the entrance of the canyon are the familiar "Pillars of Hercules." It is at this point that the huge $10,000 anti-aircraft carbon arc light has been installed. The big light has eight million candlepower and shoots an effective beam five miles in the air. The Lonesome Pine, Eagles Cliff and other features of interest are caught in its bright path. It also will be used to sweep the sky to indicate that Seven Falls is now under lights.

As a final touch, a 90 watt sound amplifier system has been installed to play soft music.

Al G. Hill, Dallas, Tex., oil man, who purchased the 1,400 acre scenic attraction June 1, 1946, immediately began a program of improvements which have taken more than a year to complete and have cost approximately $100,000. In addition to the lighting project, a stairway of 250 steps has been erected to a spectators' platform on the south wall of the canyon from which point all Seven Falls can be seen at one time. Part of a mountain slope was removed by bulldozers to provide parking space for cars, and a graceful arch has been erected over the roadway at the mouth of the canyon.

The canyon, approximately one mile in length is a "box" or dead end type. Before the coming of the white man, the Indians stampeded herds of buffalo from the plains into the canyon where they then were killed as food was needed. The canyon also served as a strategic retreat from which the Indians fought off their enemies.

Bombing Proves of Peacetime Use

HELENA, MONT.—Bombing techniques which wreaked havoc on enemy cities and military installations during the war also have proved effective in saving valuable timberlands of the northwest through control of forest fires from the air involving spraying water from planes.

In a special test conducted jointly by the forest service and army air forces, a B-29 and two P-47s successfully dropped seven water bombs on a fire deliberately set near Lolo Hot Springs in Lolo national forest. After the water bombs had been dropped with accuracy near one set blaze, splashing water over the burning area and practically bringing the fire under control, two forest service jumpers parachuted out of a forest service plane to do the mop-up work. Their tools and a hot lunch also were dropped from the plane.

Europe Goes Socialist

WESTERN Europe may escape communism by a narrow margin, but it has definitely turned to national socialism. To such horse sense as I may have, it seems an inopportune time was chosen for such an experiment.

To get back to a peacetime productive basis, the destruction of five years of war must be replaced. The destroyed, or badly crippled, railroads must again be operating at, or near, maximum capacity; coal must be coming from the mines in as great, or greater, quantity than before the war; bombed or worn out industrial plants must be rehoused and largely reequipped; farms must be rehabilitated and farm animals replaced.

All such things call for work and materials, and both cost money, which the nations of Europe do not have in their national treasuries. To issue paper money only adds to their present inflation.

Under such conditions, we would depend upon what we know as "venture" capital to accomplish the needed results. There is plenty of "venture" capital in Europe. It might have helped to do the needed job, but the turn to socialism has driven it under ground. The turn to socialism removed all chance of investing that capital in transportation, mines, industry or agriculture with any reasonable assurance of a profit for the investor. Those who have it, many thousands of individuals, are making every possible effort to keep their money under cover until they can spend it on one grand final debauch of gaiety.

NO CONFISCATION

In turning to socialism, no western European nation has so much as suggested confiscation of private property. It is all to be paid for—over a period of years—on a basis of fair valuation. Taking it over now "as is" means the government must do the rehabilitating before it can be operated and be productive. To have waited for the socialistic experiment could have meant that private capital would have done the rehabilitating job. When production was again normal, the governments could have taken over going concerns, if the people still wanted socialization.

Today America is being asked to do what private owners of Europe were not encouraged to do. We are asked to finance an experiment in national socialism; to provide the money with which to rehabilitate the destroyed or worn out production facilities of Europe. For us there is a political, but not a partisan, question involved. Western Europe, after bungling the job, is now asking that we take the hard way of financing the comeback, so that their, and our, civilization may survive.

Entertaining Ourselves

ON THE lawns of the Orange, Cal. high school building grounds we ate a pot luck dinner before attending the ball game between teams of the Rotarians and the Lions. We joked and jollied one another, and commented—favorably of course—on the cooking ability of the women folk. Dinner over, everyone went to the ball game, under the lights that had been presented to the school by the two service clubs. Everyone knew all of the players, business and professional men of the town. That game produced more thrills, was more wildly exciting, than any professional game I ever witnessed in the Cubs or the White Sox parks in Chicago. It must have been good, for it ended in a tie of 0 to 0. Such recreation as that pot luck dinner and ball game, and other forms of home-provided entertainment, has replaced, for us, the attempt to find thrills and pleasures at the theaters, the night clubs and professional sport meets of the metropolitan centers. In any comparison the city comes out a bad second. The pot luck dinner was far superior to anything a night club could provide. It was eaten under a glorious moon with the clean air and the fragrance of flowers in our nostrils. The chatter of friends was more entertaining than the nasal tones of a crooner, or the rancorous laugh, or angry argument produced by too much liquor. Me for the thrills and entertainment we provide for ourselves in our home town.

Marshall Field I was a typical, patriotic, good citizen kind of American. He built a fortune by selling merchandise to other patriotic good American citizens. Having known Marshall Field I, I know he would not appreciate having the fortune he left to posterity spent in the promotion of un-American communism.

In America there is a job for everyone who will work. In Russia you either work or you do not eat.

Todas of India Live on Neighbors; Deify Cow

The Todas of southern India, a tribe of 700 aborigines who still permit brothers and friends to have wives in common, devote little time to a profitable occupation as they are supported largely by a neighboring tribe which regards them with superstitious veneration. The Todas themselves so worship the cow that their temple is a dairy presided over by their chief holy man who sanctifies the sacred milk before its distribution.

Same Thing
"Women are all alike, aren't they?"
"Yes, everyone you meet is different."

Possible
"I shall never marry until I find a girl who is my direct opposite."
"Well, there are any number of intelligent girls in this neighborhood."

Some statisticians are insisting that a college education for women is futile. If they're pretty, it's unnecessary; if they're not, it's inadequate.

Putting It Nicely

The new preacher had arranged to preach on Jonah and the whale. He was very nervous.

"And for three days and three nights," he began, "Jonah was in the--"

He blushed, stammered, stopped, then started again: "For three days and three nights Jonah was in the--"

Once more he was covered with confusion, and once more he stopped and mopped his face, from which the perspiration was pouring.

Then he gathered his courage in both hands, and with a mighty effort he finished triumphantly: "And for three days and three nights Jonah was in the society of the whale."

A FLOWER-FESTIVAL that's simply irresistible! Twelve splashy chrysanthemum motifs in 5-to-the-inch cross-stitch for linens or curtains.

Household Hints

When sanding unfinished furniture for painting, sand thoroughly with fine sandpaper wrapped around a padded wood block. Wipe off with a soft lintless cloth.

When winding a hank of wool, wind it on a moth ball. Then, if the wool isn't all used or is put aside for awhile, the moth ball discourages moths.

To clean glass straws, use an ordinary pipe cleaner. For the larger size glass straws use two or three cleaners twisted together. Cleaners may be used a number of times.

Backless summer dresses should be made with a jacket, if you want to get full service from them. On cool nights a light bolero jacket will protect your back.

Serve hot cakes or waffles with heated honey and butter mixed together. For extra flavor, mix a little orange juice and grated rind with the honey before heating.

Shake Turkish towels vigorously before hanging to dry. This will remove wrinkles and raise the nap.

Use a carpet sweeper daily and a vacuum cleaner once a week and beating, which causes carpet threads to weaken and break, will not be necessary.

Your brown and white saddle shoes should be cleaned each day. Sloppy shabby shoes are never a sign of good styling.

Star Spangled Banner Key Watched Had 15 Stripes

The Star Spangled Banner that Francis Scott Key watched "through the perilous fight" had fifteen stripes. From 1795 to 1818 the American flag had fifteen alternating red and white stripes. Two extra stripes stood for the two newest states in the Union, Vermont and Kentucky, admitted in 1791 and '92.

"Free" Publicity Makes Advertisers Question Values

"And the advertising manager took me into the Editor's office and said, 'He's just taken 3,000 lines of advertising—so you'll fix him up with a nice story, won't you?' And he darned if the editor didn't agree right off!"

It was a New York press agent talking. He places ads in leading dailies all over the country. He tries to get publicity in, too. But it isn't always that easy. Most of the time his job is to "make news"—that is, cook up something with such a clever local tie-in to his product that an editor will almost be cutting off his nose to spite his face if he doesn't use it.

The press agent used to be a newspaperman himself. He knows the rules about what's news. And he knows he'll have to sweat it out to come up with an idea that will bring his stuff near the bounds of legitimate news. He's willing to win or lose on the basis of how good his angles are.

And what was his impression of the editor who was willing to let advertising money also buy an entry into the news column?

The press agent said this: "It was too easy. Just buying your way into the editorial columns. I didn't even have to be clever. I just tore some pages from my publicity kit and gave them to him. He used the stuff just as I gave it to him, too, corny as it was."

The press agent didn't think much of that editor. In fact, he wondered if that newspaper was a worthwhile medium for advertising. Being an ex-newspaperman, as are most publicity men, he had little respect for a newspaper which ran publicity regardless of its news value.—The American Press.

GOBBLEDYGOOK HELPS TO CONCEAL MEANING

Reporting on recent air crashes, President Truman's Air Safety Board said: "It is now possible to deduce those elements of causation from the inherent fallibility of the aneroid altimeter" which lead to "collision with terrain."

Therefore, opined the board, what is needed is "more adequate clearance of terrain when barometric variations are likely to occur."

In other words, if planes flew higher they wouldn't hit mountains.

Gobbledygook, ex-Congressman Maury Maverick's name for bureaucrats' practice of making ten big words do the work of one simple one, seems to be here to stay. Maverick, as Congressman and later as a "bureaucrat" himself, waged unceasing war against it. But it outlasted him.—Pathfinder.

The U. S. Rye Production.

For the year 1944 the state of South Dakota led all states of the Union in the production of rye with Nebraska and Oklahoma ranking second and third as named. Rye is also grown in quantities in 32 other states of the Union.

Salvation Army Aids Repatriates Of Devil's Island

Almost half of the former convict population of Devil's Island has been repatriated and rehabilitated into civilian life by the Salvation Army in France, reports reaching the Army's territorial headquarters in the United States reveal. Only 3,518 men await repatriation before the French Guiana prison colony is completely liquidated.

Two large convoys of liberated convicts reached France and North Africa recently, bringing the total of men liberated by the French government to 2,386. Brigadier Charles Pean, secretary of the Army's Devil's Island social rehabilitation work, personally met the men upon their arrival. They were fed and clothed at welfare centers and reunited with their families and relatives.

In 1938, largely through the personal efforts of Brigadier Pean, the French chamber of deputies abolished the Devil's Island prison colony. It also agreed to a proposal of the Salvation Army in France that prisoners upon release be turned over to the Army for maintenance and transportation home. Previously liberated prisoners were required to serve "double" for a period equal to their prison terms—and were allowed home only when they could pay their own passage. For many, having lost all contact with friends and relatives during their long internment, this was equivalent to life banishment.

More than 70,000 criminals were sent to the dreaded Devil's Island colony in the 95 years since its establishment by Emperor Napoleon III in 1852. Passage of the law abolishing exiles to the penal colony crowned 20 years of dogged effort by Brigadier Pean, who worked for its elimination since he joined the Salvation Army with this personal objective at the age of 19.

For the year 1944 the state of Kansas led all other states of the Union in the production of wheat, with North Dakota second and Oklahoma third.

FRAYED EXTENSION CORDS are a Household Hazard

Too many homemakers pay too little attention to wiring that members of their household use and handle every day—frayed cords go unchanged, serious damage often results.

Don't let this hazard remain in your home. Now that top grade electric cords are again available, include a check-up of wiring as part of your regular housecleaning. If a cord is frayed or defective, have it fixed by a good repairman or buy a new cord.

Remember, in the future, to avoid yanking a cord from the socket.

Train the children to follow this rule. Keep your household safe from unnecessary hazards.

ARMY PROFANITY BANROUGH ON SERGEANTS

Speedy disarmament, demilitarization and campaigns against war-mongers may be all right, particularly after the nation has gone through a war as costly and bitter as the last.

But it can be carried too far. When it reaches a point where an Army topic must wheedle and cajole raw recruits without resorting to the thinnest bit of profanity, the Army is in grave danger of becoming namby-pamby, Pathfinder warns.

For, according to a War Department order, profanity is out. Veteran noncoms can no longer pound a campaign hat into the dirt, and roast the bristles of a "yardbird with two left feet." And even worse, Ground Forces Gen. Jacob Devers who banned the nasty (but result-producing) language says that henceforth the cultural aspects of soldiering will be emphasized. This can lead anywhere. As Devers says, much can come from amateur theatricals, art classes, singing lessons and dancing.

The general may be right. But the thought of modern-ballet dancer Martha Graham taking over the morning's close-order drills may heap on Gen. Devers' shoulders more abusive language than an army of mule drivers might.

HIGHWAY DEATH TOTAL

750,000 IN 25 YEARS

Nearly 30,000 Americans will die in automobile accidents in 1947, warns Pathfinder.

On Dec. 31 when this year's casualties are added to the grim list that has been piling up since 1923 (the first year that records were kept) about 750,000 people will have died on the country's streets and highways—a toll more than half as great as the 1,130,000 lives lost in all U. S. wars.

Some such fatalities were—and will continue to be—unavoidable. But many a sudden death could have been prevented—and some still can be—by the passage of long-needed uniform, country-wide traffic laws.

For more than 20 years experts have been fighting for uniform traffic laws, sure that once they were on all states' books the highway death toll would drop sharply.

PUTTING WAINWRIGHT ON CANVAS . . . Retiring after 41 years in the service of his country, Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, the man who stayed on Bataan and Corregidor, sits for his portrait by Joseph Cummings Chase at the National Arts club in New York. The portrait is destined to hang in the Smithsonian institute.

HIGH PRICES, PRODUCE ROTS . . . Food is being dumped in hungry Britain. Tons of vegetables and fruits are being carted from London's Covent Garden markets to the country for dumping and plowing under because of a glutted market. Wholesalers charge retailers with refusing to buy large quantities in order to maintain "scarcity" prices. Retailers say wholesalers prefer to waste food rather than sell at low prices.

GOOD HOT WEATHER SPORT . . . Probably it wasn't exactly fair, but while millions of persons all over the United States were steaming and fuming in the heat wave, these two cuties, Elba Hooper and Marion Charlton by name, were playing Chinese checkers in the deliciously cool waters of a pool at Banff, Alberta, Canada. This does not prove that Chinese checkers cools you off when it's hot. The swimming pool, and maybe even Canada, are the most necessary ingredients for coolness.

GOAT TOURIST GETS AROUND . . . Against a background of a modern railroad flyer, Charles McCartney, 45, of Mt. Eagle, Ga., takes off from Arlington Heights, Ill., for Green Bay, Wis., on his 15th mission north by goat caravan. With eight goats pulling and four resting behind, McCartney's nondescript vehicle trundles along amiably, if not speedily. He claims it has carried him all over the United States.

SOAP BOX SPEEDWAY . . . The tenth anniversary running of the all-American and international soap box derby got under way at Akron, Ohio, with a spectacular pre-race parade, all derby entrants participating. The derby, won this year by Kenny Holmboe of Charleston, W. Va., was held on a special track built for the motorless speedsters.

BIG CHECK FOR CANCER RESEARCH . . . California has received its first $100,000 allocation from the Damon Runyon memorial fund for cancer research, presented by a group of representative leaders of the motion picture and radio profession in behalf of the treasurer, Walter Winchell. Presentation was made to the California division of the American Cancer Society, represented by Dr. Lyell C. Kinney. WILD BLUE YONDER GIRL . . . Calm confidence radiates from the face of Jane Page, 25, of Wilmette, Ill., who entered as a contestant in the national Bendix air races to pit her flying skill against the best male aviators in the world. One of her opponents was Bill Odom, solo globe-hopper. Miss Page sits atop the P-38 in which she planned to compete for the $10,000 Bendix prize money.

MOSAIC OF LAST SUPPER . . . F. F. Burfitt, retired Portland, Ore., plumber, who has been dabbling in mosaic work for several years, is shown with his recently completed Last Supper. The 5 by 10 foot mosaic contains 49,000 pieces of vari-colored rock, all picked up from beaches between Portland and California. It took Burfitt 9,700 hours to complete the detailed work which is an exact reproduction of Da Vinci's immortal painting.

BEST PICTURE . . . This photograph by Lloyd MacLean was awarded first prize in the fourth annual Hollywood studios still photograph show. It is a still from "Stallion Road."

PARKED AND HAPPY . . . To protect the tot from any do-gooder who might want to cart her off to the lost and found department, Barbara Salsmon's mom put this sign on the big waste paper basket where she parked the girl.

Questions About Your Government Answered

THERE'S more to our government than the dull facts and figures contained in text books. Did you know, for instance, that four pairs of our Presidents were related?

That the "Star Spangled Banner" did not become our national anthem until 1931? That a President can be impeached, but a congressman cannot?

Do you know why "capitol" and "capitol" are spelled differently? Hundreds of interesting questions about the government are answered in booklet No. 202. BETTER LATE

By EDWARD STEVENSON

WELL, I'm certainly glad you're not seasick. When I first saw you leaning over the rail I said to myself that you must be seasick, though I couldn't see how anybody could get seasick with the water so calm the way it is. Our room steward says that anybody that gets seasick in this kind of weather wouldn't be safe on the lake in Central Park. He's a regular comedian. . . . And that reminds me, how much do you think I ought to tip him—the room steward, I mean? I'm not one that don't have to count my pennies, but still I want to do the right thing as to tipping.

You see, this is the first time we've been on a boat—my wife and me, I mean. Of course we've taken a trip up the Hudson with the kids, but I guess you wouldn't mention the Hudson River Day Line in the same breath with the S. S. Goliath, would you? The kids thought it was grand, though. They're grown up and married now, with kids of their own—except Judy, that is, and she hardly had time, not having been married quite a year yet—but it don't seem more than yesterday that they were running about like a bunch of wild Indians and getting into all sorts of mischief. Time certainly flies.

Whew! it's getting hot, isn't it? We must be coming into the tropics from the way it feels. Ever been down here before, Mr. — I don't think you mentioned your name, did you? . . . Arthur? . . . Well, I'm glad to know you, Mr. Arthur. My name's Bentham. I'd like you to meet my wife some time, too. That's her laying in that deck chair down at the end. She's making believe she's reading that book, but she's sound asleep. The salt air seems to tucker her out.

As I was saying, time certainly flies. Now, you take me. Why, it seems it's only the other day that Ellen and me were getting married; and here we are, grandparents of six already.

We've been married thirty-five years. It don't seem possible, but that's what it is, all right. Why, say, I can remember the wedding just as plain as if it happened last week. It wasn't much of a wedding—you know, no fuss and feathers. Besides Ellen and I and the minister there was only the minister's wife and the church janitor, for witness. But I can still see the five of us standing there in the chapel, with the sun coming through a high window and falling all around us and turning everything golden. I remember Ellen specially. She was so pretty and little.

When I look back, I think Ellen and I must've been crazy, getting married the way we did. My gosh, I didn't have a cent to my name—it was all I could do to scrape up the money for the wedding ring. Engagement rings and honeymoons and all the fixings were out of reach as far as we were concerned.

I felt pretty bad, taking her right from church to a $2.50-a-week furnished room. A wonderful girl like her deserved better, and I told her so. A big wedding, a reception at the Waldorf—the old Waldorf, you know—and a honeymoon at Niagara Falls was little enough to her. But she just laughed. "If I wanted such truck," she says, "I'd've married Mr. Astor and not Johnny Bentham." That's the way she is. I didn't mind so much not having a big church affair, or a reception afterwards, but, gosh, what's a wedding without a honeymoon? I mean, it made me feel kind of low, not being able to provide even that.

You know, marrying Ellen was the making of me. I was just a shipping clerk at the time, but she made me study bookkeeping and when an opening in the company

Well, last year our company did pretty well and they gave all the old employes a month's pay for a bonus at Christmas—first bonus we'd had in years. So what did I do? Well, I figured with all the kids married and no one to take care of but ourselves, that we didn't have any real need for the money, so I didn't breathe a word about it to Ellen. You see, I'd been seeing these cruise ads in the papers and I thought to myself that's just the thing for Ellen and I. Twelve days. Nassau, Jamaica and Cuba. $125 and up. I didn't say anything till about two weeks before we were to sail. Then I broke the news. Well you could've knocked Ellen over with a feather.

"First thing I knew she threw her arms around me."

came along I stepped right in. I'm head bookkeeper now. Of course that isn't so much—there's only one other bookkeeper—but being head of anything is pretty good these days, I always say. A couple of years back when I'd been with the company thirty-five years they put on a dinner for me at Jack Dempsey's and gave me a watch. Here it is. See what it says. "To John W. Bentham"—that's my full name—"for thirty-five years of devoted service. Atlas Paper & Supply Co." Mr. Stover, the president, made a speech. I did too—but I was too choked up to say much. You can bet I'd never've stuck around to get that watch if it hadn't been for Ellen.

And the kids, too, of course. When you get to be a family man you got to tend to business. Kit—that's short for Christopher—was the first; then Roger, Cynthia, Anthony, and Judy, the baby. Nice names, ain't they? Ellen picked 'em out.

They're all grown up now—fine young men and women, if I do say so myself—but there was times when you just wondered if they ever would. It was just one thing after another. Sick or healthy, they had you up to your neck in bills.

"Johnny Bentham," she says, "are you out of your mind?" "No," I says. "And I haven't robbed a bank, neither." So I told her all about the bonus.

Well, she still thought I was crazy. "Spending all that money on a little trip," she says. "Do you think we're millionaires? Johnny, I'll never put foot on that boat." "Now, that's a fine howdydo!" I says, making out I'm insulted. "A woman refusing to go on a honeymoon with her husband!"

Well, she just looked at me and I just looked at her, and first thing you know she threw her arms around me and began kissing me, and what did the two of us do but end up laughing and crying like a couple of kids.

"Gosh, Mama," I says. "It's better late than never, ain't it?" . . . Say, will you look at them porpoises!

Book Reviews In Brief

THE CAMPBELLS ARE COMING—Glenn H. Campbell (Dodd, Mead & Co., $4).

The origin of the Clan Campbell and the history of Scotland are synonymous and here the author, as a bearer of the famous name, takes the most interesting aspects of each and has woven them into a skillfully drawn account of the Campbells' hand in Scottish affairs.

Liberal illustrated, the book contains historical information written in an absorbing narrative form. In every Scotch crisis a Campbell had a responsible role in the ultimate outcome. One of the best chapters in the book concerns the story of the ill-fated Mary, Queen of Scots, on whose side the Campbells remained loyal with almost disastrous results.

The author, an advertising executive of Cleveland, O., took many pains to bring his readers an accurate, descriptive history of the Campbells. Not content with a long and diligent research in local libraries, he travelled to Scotland and covered personally the territory about which he writes. While the book is of primary interest to the Campbells themselves, many of whom know nothing of the fascinating background of the clan, every individual of Scotch descent and scholars of every nationality will find something appealing in its pages.

National Park Ideals

National parks in the United States, created by act of congress, are areas of national significance distinguished by superlative natural scenery, set aside for preservation as nearly as possible in unimpaired condition and dedicated to the use and inspiration of the people. In establishing the Yellowstone, first national park, congress quaintly designated it "a public park or pleasuring-ground for the benefit and enjoyment of the people," and provided against "injury or spoliation of all timber, mineral deposits, natural curiosities or wonders within said park, and their retention in their natural conditions. In establishing national parks no thought is given to geographic location. The area proposed for national park use is considered primarily from the standpoint of whether or not its principal features are of broad, national interest.

SPORTLIGHT BY GRANTLAND RICE

Twenty years ago, Babe Ruth turned in his 60th home run in a single season.

Here is a mark that thousands of ball players have been swinging at ever since, but only three have seriously challenged. These were Hank Greenberg of the Tigers, Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics, with 58 each, and Hack Wilson of the Cubs with 56.

What the three don't know is that they were halted by the jinx plastered on their robust frames by several million kids, to whom that number SIXTY has been a shining star in baseball's sky because the Babe put it there.

Just when it began to look as if both Greenberg and Foxx were certain to beat it, star dust, thrown mysteriously by all these kids, got in their batting eyes and they were forced to halt abruptly.

Now Big John Mize of the Giants is the latest Ruth challenger for a record season. Big John of the moon face and the mighty swing will be facing the same jinx. Many thousands of kids would like to see the mauling Mize reach 59. But not 60. Especially not 61.

This mysterious kind jinx won't begin to affect Jolting John until he passes the 50, or perhaps the 55 point. Then he will feel mysterious forces at work that will turn the baseball into the size of a golf ball. He will find star dust in his batting eye, just as Greenberg and Foxx did. Big John won't quite understand what has happened, but some ten million kids will.

Untouchable Record

Those 60 Babe Ruth home runs, delivered twenty years ago as part of a total cargo of 714—which is beyond anybody's reach unless they use rubber balls and move the fences in back of the infield—is now a classic number in American sport. It belongs to the greatest power hitter of all time, who was only halted by the 100 to 170 bases on balls handed him each year.

The Babe picked out his stance from Joe Jackson. This position is known in golf as the closed stance which, in Babe's left-handed batting posture, meant that his right foot was well in advance of his left. However, Babe's stance was not as pronounced as Shoeless Joe's was, and his feet were treaded closer together to give his tremendous body a better chance to work with his hands and arms.

Added to his power was almost perfect coordination between mind and muscle, including amazing reflexes. If Ruth had started out as an outfielder in 1914 or 1915, where he was a winning pitcher, his home-run mark today would have been around 1,000.

Mize and the Modern Ball

No one can question the fact that the ball Babe swung at was far livelier than the pellet Home Run Baker, Ty Cobb, Joe Jackson, Tris Speaker and other hitters had to face before the first war. On the other hand, taking nothing from Johnny Mize, the 1947 National League ball looks to be the liveliest ammunition yet thrown at swinging bats.

In certain places the fences have also been moved in to decrease the home-run range.

But this isn't Johnny Mize's fault. He is swinging at the ball that is O.K'd by the National League. He has always been a great power hitter.

The war came along just when Big John was at his prime, and after his injury last season, few thought he would ever be the same old wallop.

Lots of Power Hitters

It isn't so much that Mize is now up in the home run 30s. It is more that so many others are close on his trail. As I recall the far off details, Home Run Baker, another stout swinger, led both leagues around 1911 with either 9 or 11 home runs.

I can't recall a ball club that had such power hitters as Mize, Marshall, Cooper and Thomson at this stage of the race—not even Ruth, Gehrig and Meusel. The Giants are now after the old Yankee mark and are quite likely to break it.

Today any power hitter who hasn't collected 20 home runs, in the National League especially, is on the puny side. Ted Williams, rated the hardest modern hitter, is close to the Giant trio. Ted has a good chance to lead the American League, but only an epidemic of home runs down the stretch can put him in front of Mize.

Club owners have decided that the home run is something the crowd wants, and apparently the 1947 attendance is backing up their judgment. Any number of teams will pass the million mark this season, including Pittsburgh, which has been just above the cellar line. The baseball fan is a rabid animal, and if he thought too many home runs were being hit, he would lose little time in staying away.

Earning and Spending

LESSON TEXT FOR SEPTEMBER 7—Proverbs 11:24-27; 16:8; Ecclesiastes 5:10, 11; James 5:1-6.

MEMORY SELECTION—Better is a little with righteousness than great revenues without right.—Proverbs 16:8.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

By WILLIAM CULBERTSON, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

AS BELIEVERS in Christ we are responsible not only for the way we earn our living, but for the way we spend what we earn.

Of course we must earn our living honestly, but if we spend foolishly that which we have earned, we shall have dissipated much of the effect of our example in earning.

Possessions are a trust from God, and we shall have to render an account of our stewardship.

Just because we have given a certain percentage of our income to Christian causes is no reason to think we shall meet with divine approbation with regard to our stewardship. If we give a tithe, well and good, but what about the other nine-tenths? Is God pleased with our stewardship there?

I. The Vanity of Wealth (Eccles. 5:10, 11).

IN ANY study of wealth, it seems necessary to begin with an understanding of its limitations. We live in a world in which men frequently lay great importance on possessions, and indeed, there are many things which wealth can purchase. On the other hand, there are some things that money cannot buy. And further, we should recognize that our possessions are not eternal, that they may suddenly fade away.

The passage here reminds us of the fact that wealth for wealth's sake is bound to be a disappointment. The man who loves silver shall not be satisfied with silver, any more than the man who loves pleasure shall be satisfied with pleasure. Augustine was right when he said that man could be satisfied with no less than God himself.

Notice how accurately the picture is drawn. If we have increased wealth, we have increased responsibility (v. 11). That fact is as unalterable as the most rigid law we know. The only advantage is, as the Preacher expresses it, the beholding of goods with the eye—not a very great advantage after all.

II. The Proper Accumulation of Wealth (Prov. 16:8).

IT IS just as true as when Solomon wrote it, that "Better is a little, with righteousness, than great revenues with injustice."

This statement needs no argument, needs no proof. If we would have the honor of men, self-respect, and the blessing of God, there is no alternative.

III. The Improper Accumulation of Wealth (James 5:1-6).

THE apostle James speaks of a condition that will obtain in the last days (v. 3). There are many evidences that the condition he describes has had altogether too many fulfillments in recent history.

James excoriates the rich who have defrauded their employees in order that they might fare sumptuously and live riotously. These unscrupulous rich have taken advantage because they were not resisted (v. 6). Such wealth is corrupted.

Notice once again that the result of their sin will rise to break them. It is a serious thing to trifle with sin, to eat the bread of iniquity. God has no patience with injustice in social relationships. Sooner or later judgment will come.

IV. The Proper Use of Wealth (Prov. 11:24-27).

LIBERALITY should characterize the child of God. It is true that the Bible condemns the attitude of imprudence, yet it also condemns the attitude of the miser. To withhold more than is meet, also tends to want.

How blessedly true it is that there is a recompense to giving. Here we read that the one who waters shall himself be watered. Our Lord affirmed the same truth in Luke 6:38.

To have it within our power to help, and fail to do so, is to bring upon ourselves censure and condemnation. Therefore, we should seek to perform the good (v. 27).

This passage concludes with the statement that one who searches after evil shall find that evil will come to him. The man who sets his heart to do wrong will not have to wait long to find the occasion to do that which is in his heart.

Many are the injunctions in the New Testament regarding the proper use of wealth. For example, the Christian has a duty toward his own family (I Tim. 5:8). He is enjoined to be sympathetic and generous in his giving to help others (II Cor. 8:15). Certainly he is to dispense his goods with the glory of God in view (cf. Col. 3:17).

Water or Electricity. Prompt cooling of milk during hot weather is essential if losses are to be avoided. There should be four times as much cold water as milk available for this purpose, unless electrical refrigeration is utilized. Water cools milk many times faster than air at the same temperature. When an overflow pipe leads from the milk house to the water trough the surplus may be used without loss. If electricity is available it should be used to cool the water.

Electric Driven Tractor

Electrically driven tractors have been tried out successfully in Russia, according to reports from the Moscow Institute of Mechanization. The tractor is mounted on a standard Stalingrad or Kharkov chassis and is powered by a 54 horsepower electric motor. Electricity to operate the motor is carried by cable from portable generating substation which can be moved to convenient locations on the farm.

Making Cakes Smooth

Housewives who like to have their cakes look smooth and neat around the edges after frosting should cut a piece of fairly heavy paper just a bit larger than the cake plate, then cut the paper into quarters. Place the paper under the cake and apply frosting. After the frosting has "set," the paper should be removed and the cake plate will be free from drippings.

Tree Farmer's Need

A tree farmer needs about 20 acres of growing timber to produce an average annual revenue equal to what one acre will produce in such crops as wheat or corn. But trees may be profitably grown on land unsuited to grains or other food produce and once a tree farm is in growth it will bear perpetually with nature doing the work of planting.

New Fish Product

Blue marlin, heretofore known only to sporting fishermen vacationing off the west coast, has made its debut to the general public in tin cans. Canned in brine, the pink-fleshed marlin may become a favorite along with the salmon and tuna that were unknown to the public less than 35 years ago.

Change in Writing

In early forms of writing, the letters ran on continuously in lines, and it was only by degrees that words became divided up by spacing within the line, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica. Distribution into sentences by punctuation came even later.

ACP ACTIVITIES

The Will county AAA office has just received word that federal crop insurance on wheat will not be offered in the county next year. Recent congressional action has limited the scope of the program, and only eight Illinois counties will have a 1948 insurance program.

At present there are 47 insurance contracts in effect in the county.

Mr. Gaskill, county AAA chairman, valid as far as the 1947 wheat crop is pointed out that these contracts are concerned, and a farmer will be paid for any insured loss to the 1947 crop. However, all contracts in the county are to be cancelled for the 1948 crop year.

By limiting the scope of the program and trying out various insurance plans, the federal agency expects it will be able to offer later a sounder insurance for farmers in the county after the experimental period is over.
